II. Translation Section: Reading Poetry (3 passages—20 min. each) here or in Blue Book

Directions: The instructions for the translation questions, “translate as literally as possible,” call for a translation that is accurate and precise. In some cases an idiom may be translated in a way that makes sense in English but is rather loose compared to the Latin construction. In general, however, students should remember that:

- the tense, voice, number, and mood of verbs need to be translated literally;
- subject-verb agreement must be correct;
- participles should be rendered precisely with regard to tense and voice;
- ablatives absolute may be rendered literally or as subordinate clauses; however, the tense and number of the participle must be rendered accurately;
- historical present is acceptable as long as it is used consistently throughout the passage.

III. Essay Section: (long essay: suggested time 45-60 minutes)

Begin your answer to this question on a clean page in your Blue Book.

The women of Vergil's Aeneid are among the poem's most memorable characters. We have seen throughout Books I-VI places at which the narrative has either advanced or come to a halt at the hands of Aeneas' interaction with a woman. Write a five-paragraph essay on Aeneas's relationship to women and how those women serve as a catalyst to the story, or not. Choose at least three women to write about: options Juno, Venus, Dido, Creusa, the Sybil (Deiphobe). The focus of your essay may be based directly on Aeneas' interaction with them or you may choose to couch your essay in terms of how Vergil as an author uses these relationships. You may want to make use of Vergil's own words regarding Dido: "Dux femina facti."
